

Meir mission in U.S. seen 'accomplished'

By SAM LIPSKI
Jerusalem Post Correspondent
WASHINGTON. — After four days of talks in Washington which, despite doubts and tensions at the outset, consolidated the close relationship between the U.S. and Israel, Prime Minister Golda Meir is continuing her American visit with fund-raising appearances and meetings with Jewish leaders.

At an Israel Bonds dinner last night in Miami Beach, Florida, Mrs. Meir's visit triggered a record-breaking initial sale of $136,000,000 in Bonds toward the 1973 goal of $300m. Three thousand American and Canadian Bonds leaders were at the dinner.

Mrs. Meir was flown in by presidential plane from Washington to Miami to join in a tribute to Sam Rabinovitch as General Chairman and founder of the Israel bond organization. The Premier presented the first Israel Silver Anniversary Award to Mr. Rabinovitch, citing his quarter-century of leadership and "historic contribution to Israel," adding "year after year his tireless labours have set an example of devotion and love of Israel unique in the annals of Jewry."

Surveying her round of official talks and public appearances in Washington, Mrs. Meir can look back on her visit in the capital with a sense of "mission accomplished."

Firstly, Israel received Mr. Nixon's pledge that the pipeline for military and economic assistance would remain open. This means that Mrs. Meir goes back to Jerusalem knowing that her request for $300m. in military credits and some $215m. in economic aid has been granted. It also means that Israel's military planners can assume the requests for additional Phantoms and Skyhawks — reported to be 50 in each category — helicopter gunships, missiles, and "smart" bombs, will also be approved as delivery dates are settled.

American sources say Mrs. Meir did not ask for a specific timetable for arms deliveries, but wanted to be assured that the supply lines be kept open after the present agreements for sophisticated weapons expire in the next 12-18 months.

Secondly, Mrs. Meir found that the U.S. had no surprises in store and that on the fundamental questions of Israel's negotiating position there was no pressure, no demand for greater flexibility, no hint of imposition of a blueprint. As she summed it up herself: "There are no arguments between the United States and Israel."

Mr. Nixon did not convey any new ideas of substance from Egypt although Mrs. Meir is said to have gained the impression that Egypt's special envoy, Hafez Ismail, voiced Castro's position in a more flexible and conciliatory tone.

Thirdly, both in her public and official meetings Mrs. Meir reinforced the initiative for Israel, reminding and reinforcing the awareness that it is Israel which has agreed to indirect talks on an interim agreement and that it is Egypt which has yet to accept such an idea, that it is Israel which remains ready to talk at any time, at any place, and at any level without any pre-conditions. Despite its constant reiteration by Jerusalem this position is blurred from time to time in American public opinion where it is Israel which appears yielding and "intransigent." Mrs. Meir made her genuine sorrow apparent and communicated Israel's distress at "the tragic series of mistakes." Either because of the lapse of time or because of the admission by Israel that it bore some of the responsibility for the tragedy (or both) the Libyan airliner incident did not dominate the public mood of the visit as both American and Israeli observers had feared. Where it did figure Mrs. Meir's direct approach was persuasive.

Fourthly, by meeting it head-on and dealing with it exhaustively, Mrs. Meir did much to defuse the anti-Israel impact of the Libyan airliner incident. From her opening remarks to reporters at the airport in Washington to her emotional but firm explanation at the National Press Club, Mrs. Meir made her genuine sorrow apparent and communicated Israel's distress at "the tragic series of mistakes." Either because of the lapse of time or because of the admission by Israel that it bore some of the responsibility for the tragedy (or both) the Libyan airliner incident did not dominate the public mood of the visit as both American and Israeli observers had feared. Where it did figure Mrs. Meir's direct approach was persuasive.

Meetings on dollar crisis

The dollar plunged again on Friday in worldwide unofficial trading as European statesmen scheduled weekend crisis meetings and President Nixon ruled out any further devaluation of the dollar.

Which official currency exchanges closed in Europe and Japan, the dollar took another beating in unofficial trading among banks as speculators pressed their campaign to drive the dollar to its knees.

The new blow came less than three weeks after the dollar was devalued by 10 per cent. Wall Street prices fell in New York due to uncertainty over the future role of America's money in the world. Gold prices soared as some speculators sought a haven in the dollar storm.

Mr. Nixon's prediction that the dollar would ride out the newsworthy attacks came after finance ministers of the nine-nation European Common Market had decided to convene in Brussels today to discuss the new crisis. Strong feeling existed in European capitals that the best move for the E.M.C. would be a joint float of their currencies against the dollar, coupled with stringent exchange controls.

However, Mr. Nixon aroused speculation about future U.S. currency policy by calling an unusual meeting yesterday of top economic advisers. A White House spokesman described it as a regular meeting on economic affairs and cautioned newsmen not to assume the present currency crisis was the purpose. The conference was arranged after word was received in Washington about today's meeting in Brussels.

A big snag in the joint float — which would leave the value of E.M.C. currencies unchanged against each other but floating as a bloc against the dollar — is that working and the Italian lira are already floating. Some way would have to be worked out to re-peg them first, officials said.

In Britain, Prime Minister Edward Heath and Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber met yesterday at Heath's country home.

'Early summer' visit by Brandt is reported

Jerusalem Post Correspondent
BONN. — The respected "Stuttgarter Zeitung" says Chancellor Willy Brandt's long expected trip to Israel will probably take place in early summer.

However, informed sources here were unaware that any official date has been officially set for the visit, despite rumours it would occur in the first half of this year.

Speculation was fuelled by the newspaper report that Brandt last Thursday informed special Egyptian envoy Hafez Ismail of his intention to go to Israel in "early summer."

ATTEMPTED MURDER OF TWO AMERICAN DIPLOMATS AND ONE BELGIAN IN SAUDI ARABIAN EMBASSY SUDAN WON'T DISCUSS DEAL OVER HOSTAGES

Black September would blow up building

By ANAN SAFADI, Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter.

Sudan last night moved up troops around the Saudi Arabian embassy in Khartoum and called on a besieged Black September squad inside to surrender and to hand over two Arab hostages and the bodies of three foreign diplomats who the terrorists shot dead Friday night. The terrorists, believed to be seven in number, shot their way into the embassy Thursday night during a reception.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency said the terrorists had rejected the Sudanese demand and had warned they would set off enough explosives to blow up a large area unless they were provided with a plane to fly out to an unspecified destination along with their hostages.

The hostages are Jordan's Charge d'Affaires Adly al-Nasser and Saudi Arabian Ambassador Sheikh Abdulrahman al-Mubarak and his Lebanese wife, who chose to remain at the side of her husband.

The terrorists said the bodies of U.S. Ambassador Cleo Noel, 54, his deputy chief of mission, Curtis Moore, 47, and Belgian Charge d'Affaires Guy Eide, 38, would not be delivered until they were permitted to leave Khartoum.

They demanded safe passage to the airport. If the Sudanese authorities provoked them they would blow themselves up together with the remaining hostages by means of explosives belts on their persons. They cautioned the Sudanese authorities against approaching the embassy, stating that the site was planted with mines ready to blow up the place and a large area surrounding it. Sudanese security forces evacuated residents from the area and cleared it of a crowd of citizens and newsmen.

Sudanese troops, supported by armoured cars and half a dozen tanks, took up positions around the embassy.

Last night Fatah chief Yasser Arafat cabled Sudanese President Nureddin al-Bashir, asking him to refrain from storming the terrorist stronghold. Arafat said he was sending a special envoy to help solve the crisis.

The siege of the embassy came after an extraordinary session of the Sudanese Cabinet chaired by Vice-

Nixon expresses grief, and world press reaction, on Page 4.

President and Interior Minister General Mohammed Bakr, General Bakr on Friday carried out futile negotiations to achieve the release of the hostages.

The government decided to hold no more negotiations and to demand that the terrorists surrender, the Sudanese state radio said.

Six terrorists had earlier appeared on the balcony of the Saudi Arabian embassy. One called on the nearby Sudanese security forces to not to "avoid bloodshed," saying that the "death of Arab hostages was unnecessary." Using a loudspeaker, the terrorists claimed the bloodshed between Arabs was what "Nixon and Hussein want." The terrorist was interrupted by an army commander who ordered him and his colleagues to get back inside.

The terrorists rejected all appeals to release the bodies of the two American diplomats and the Belgian Charge d'Affaires. One appeal came from the International Red Cross. It was made at the request of a special American envoy, Undersecretary of State William Macomber, whom President Nixon dispatched to Khartoum. Mr. Macomber was unable to reach his destination because of a raging sandstorm and was last reported to have flown from Cairo to Amman.

Hostages beaten before killed

TOKYO (AP). — U.S. Ambassador Cleo Noel took refuge in a washroom when Black September terrorists burst into the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum on Thursday, but was found, tied up and beat-

The story of Shigeru Nomoto, Japanese Charge d'Affaires in Khartoum, who was among guests at the embassy at the time, was told in a telephone interview he gave to the newspaper "Yomiuri" and published yesterday.

Nomoto said the terrorists stormed into the room where he was chatting with other diplomats.

"The U.S. Ambassador, several other diplomats and I immediately took refuge in a washroom but were soon discovered and taken back to the room again. Under my very eyes, the guerrillas tightly bound Ambassador Noel and (First Secretary C. Curtis) Moore with ropes they had brought with them and punched and kicked them unmercifully," Nomoto said.

Nomoto said, "All the captives with the exception of the U.S. Ambassador and Moore were taken to the second floor drawing room under the watchful eyes of about 10 guerrillas, all armed. As I left the room, I saw Ambassador Noel and Moore lying on the floor, still tightly bound. That was the last I saw of them alive."

He said he also saw Belgian Charge d'Affaires Guy Eide lying on the floor with his legs all bloody, apparently shot by the terrorists. This also was before Eide's murder by the terrorists.

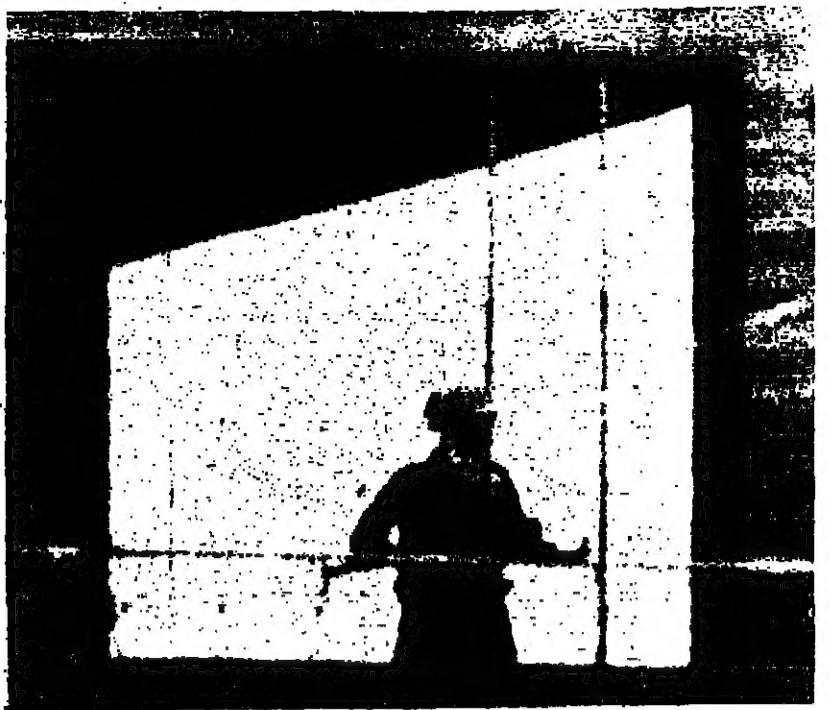

Nomoto said he was held about two hours before he was released.

Children to Khartoum

WASHINGTON (UPI). — President Nixon is sending a special plane to Sudan with three of the four children of the two American diplomats slain in Khartoum, the White House announced yesterday. The children will be reunited with their mothers in Khartoum.

in Khartoum. Both of the victims, Mr. Noel of Oklahoma and Mr. Moore of Ohio, were career diplomats with a long service records in the Middle East. They were instrumental in helping restore diplomatic relations between Washington and Khartoum last year despite pressures on the Sudan by neighbouring Egypt and Libya. Each of the victims had two children.

ESCAPED OR FREED

The victims were among several diplomats at a reception given by the Saudi Arabian embassy in honour of Mr. Moore who was about to be transferred from Khartoum. Most of the diplomats escaped or were released by the terrorists shortly after they shot their way into the Saudi Arabian embassy about 7 p.m. Thursday. The two Americans and the Belgian were kept captive along with the Saudi Arabian ambassador and Jordan's Charge d'Affaires.

Their main contact appeared to have been with Egypt's Middle East News Agency with which they maintained an open telephone line. MRNA flashed the terrorist demands for the release of scores of convicted Fatah members in Jordan, three Bader Meinhoff leaders in West Germany and Sirhan Sirhan, convicted assassin of Senator Robert Kennedy.

Later the terrorists dropped their claims against Israel and West Germany, on the grounds that Sudan had no relations with "enemy" Israel, and because the West German ambassador was not present there, giving a reception of his own at the time.

A statement broadcast by Sudan's Omdurman Radio following the emergency Cabinet session said the terrorists' demand for a plane to fly to the U.S. became pointless after the murder of the American ambassador and his deputy chief of mission. Furthermore Sudan had no intention of burdening any other country by supplying the terrorists with a plane to fly to an "unspecified destination." The terrorists were presumably intending to reach Libya, a staunch supporter of the Black September.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency earlier quoted the terrorists as saying — in a phone conversation with a Palestinian correspondent — that they had planned to present the Palestinian case to the American public and then execute their hostages on American soil. Another version said that Palestinians rounded up by the Sudanese authorities in Khartoum reported the terrorists had in fact planned to go to the U.S. to press for the release of Sirhan Sirhan.

On Friday, Cairo offered to "welcome" the terrorists in Egypt — "a country of their own." This offer seems to have been rejected by the Sudanese authorities, probably because the terrorists demanded a senior Sudanese government official accompany them as a hostage.

Reports coming from Khartoum said the U.S. had sent the Sudan a note stating that Washington's "revulsion" at the murder of the diplomat hostages would be further "aggravated" if Sudan gave the Black September squad free passage out of the country.

The first signs that the Sudanese authorities were toughening their stand came late Friday night. In a blinding sandstorm, Sudanese paratroops, snipers and armoured

RAIN AND SNOW OVER WEEKEND

Jerusalem Post Staff
Heavy rain all over the country and snow in the North reminded Israelis over the weekend that spring is not yet here to stay. Temperatures dropped to below zero in Jerusalem on Friday night and snow equipment was organized yesterday in case light snow flurries turned into something more serious last night.

The rain is expected to continue this morning, but temperatures are due to rise during the day and the sky will clear up, the weatherman said last night.

A fleet of 70 vehicles — including 30 army trucks and halftracks — was on standby in Jerusalem yesterday to meet the anticipated snowfall. No major problems were reported from the rain and fleeting snow.

The Municipality decided to ask the army for help at a meeting yesterday on snow-fighting measures. The 20 vehicles, sent to keep the roads open, were in the Capital by 6 p.m.

On Friday, the Municipality set up a coordinating committee — replacing its former emergency committee — to deal with snow problems other than electricity failures. The numbers to call are 226523, 226533 and 226513. Electricity cuts should be reported to the Electric Corporation.

Friday night's rain caused about 20 cases of house-flooding in Jerusalem, mainly in the Old City and the Wadi Joz area. Municipality and Fire Brigade teams pumped out the

N.R.P. IN DISARRAY AFTER 4th CONVENTION

By MARK SEGAL
Jerusalem Post Political Reporter
TEL AVIV. — The National Religious Party emerged from its fourth national convention in a state of disarray, reflected in a decision to reconsider important decisions adopted earlier by the delegates. One called for compulsory call-up of yeshiva students, and the second for making N.R.P. entry into the next coalition government conditional on amending the "Who's a Jew" amendment to the Law of Return.

In the last stage of the convention the presidium lost control as one crisis followed another. After sitting long into the night, the convention briefly reassembled early Friday morning. It decided to leave the final say on revision to the new 501-member Central Committee.

The exhausted delegates dispersed without completing their scheduled agenda. Left up in the air were decisions on setting up a faction in the Histadrut and whether N.R.P. office-holders should be obliged to step down after four consecutive terms in office.

Most of the factions lost control of their delegates on major issues. This left the field open to the small but well-organized minority faction of the Kibbutz Dati.

Gaza-Tel Aviv line gets new lease on life

The Gaza-Tel Aviv train line will continue to operate for an additional three-months "trial period," the Transport Ministry announced Friday.

The announcement came following a meeting between Ministry officials and representatives of the Finance Ministry, the Military Government of the Gaza Strip and Israeli Railways. The decision to keep the line going was made by Transport Minister Shimon Peres, and the Military Government will continue to participate in the operating expenses.

Last week the line's first trial period of four months ended, and the Military Government indicated it would not continue to cover the operation's losses.

ELIAT-SHARM E-SHEIKH Egged bus service will continue after all, the company announced over the weekend. The once-a-day service was to have stopped today.

Police spokesman Nitzav-Mishne Michael Bochner said this was the third case of Shamgar drivers allegedly assaulting Magor drivers.

Tow truckers beat up rival driver

Six members of the striking Shamgar towing company were arrested Friday after they allegedly beat up a driver of the rival Magor towing company and damaged his tow truck.

The Shamgar towers are striking in protest of a contract awarded to Magor by police, in a public tender, for removing vehicles disabled in road accidents. Shamgar, the towing service of the Israel Garage Association, entered bids of IL30 to IL35 per tow, while Magor won the contract with a bid of IL20.

Friday's assault of the Magor driver took place on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv road, at the Moza bridge. The six men, driving a car bearing the Shamgar sign, saw the Magor truck parked at the roadside. They stopped and allegedly dragged out the driver, Haim Hassid, attacked him and damaged his truck and its tow-way aid.

Police spokesman Nitzav-Mishne Michael Bochner said this was the third case of Shamgar drivers allegedly assaulting Magor drivers.

houses. There were also about 10 cases of roads being flooded by the rain, and scattered instances of falling branches cutting power, mostly to streetlights.

In Kfar, some 1,000 telephones were cut off yesterday, when rain water seeped into an underground cable on a building site.

Snow, sleet, rain and hail hit Upper Galilee and the Golan Heights on Friday night and continued all weekend. In other parts of the North and in the Jordan Valley it rained hard on and off, and farmers were delighted to have this easing of the winter drought.

Lightning and thunder storms accompanied the downpours. A carpet of snow up to 10 cms. high formed in Upper Galilee and added to that still on Mt. Hermon. But except on the mountain peaks the snow melted by noon yesterday.

SNOW PLOUGHS

The P.W.D. mobilized six snow ploughs, but only at Majdal Shams was it necessary to clear away the snow for traffic to move. The ski area on Mt. Hermon was closed.

In the Jordan Valley 30 mm. of rain were measured over the weekend. The Yarmuk River rose slightly, but did not overflow its banks. It will take another day or two before the effect on the level of Lake Kinneret is measurable.

In the Safad area, the temperature sank to one degree centigrade below zero. Twenty-one mm. of rain fell in 24 hours, bringing the season's total to 286 mm. (compared with 429 mm. at this time last year). In Western Galilee the rainfall varied between 21 and 30 mm. raising the total this winter to just over half last year's total.

with Treasury and Bank of England advisers to discuss how to deal with the floating pound.

Central bankers of four Scandinavian countries also held a meeting yesterday in Sweden.

A Bonn spokesman predicted the crisis would be over by Wednesday and indicated that foreign exchanges would stay shut until then. In Tokyo, the Finance Ministry announced last night that the Tokyo Foreign Exchange market will remain closed tomorrow.

Major exchanges in Europe and Japan were closed Friday after a record $3,500 m. was dumped on Thursday by speculators. The Monetary Committee of the European Economic Community met yesterday to discuss possible solutions. The committee was to make a final decision on its position and submit its proposal today to the Finance Ministers. (Reuters, AP, UPI)

French inquiry team meets Hod, pilot

Jerusalem Post Reporter
The three-man French team investigating the Libyan airplane crash met on Friday with the O/C Air Force, Aluf Mordechai Hod, and with one of the pilots who intercepted the aircraft. They also visited the site in Sinai where the plane crashed.

The French team were given all the information and documentary evidence connected with the incident, Israeli sources said. This included copies of the tape from the plane's "black box" flight recorder. They expressed their thanks to the Israeli Government for its help and cooperation.

Yesterday they visited the injured passengers and crewman at Soroka Medical Centre in Beersheba.

The mission is composed of Alphonse Quillevet, chief engineer; Jean-Claude Buck, flight controller of the French Civil Aviation Authority; and Air France Capt. Andre Gely.

These resolutions brought the convention to a standstill, as the factions held hurried caucus meetings in side rooms of the Cinerama Hall. The faction leaders were hard put to persuade their followers that call-up of yeshiva students would do the party great harm. Yitzhak Raphael reportedly told his supporters: "Even the Defence Minister has not dared to make this demand of us."

When the convention reassembled after breakfast, the delegates had already repented of their previous intemperance and by an overwhelming vote resolved to revise the issue, with Lamifne's leader — Interior Minister Yosef Burg — moving that the Central Committee be awarded the power of the convention. Dr. Raphael quickly agreed, and the delegates dispersed to their homes well before the Sabbath started.

The revision decision notwithstanding, the storm caused by the decision began to develop of its own impetus. Already by Friday noon the two Chief Rabbis issued angry reprimands of the N.R.P.'s decision on call-up of yeshiva students, arguing it represented a breach of the religious status quo.

This reporter learned later last night that the new party secretary-general, Zvi Bernstein, had sent telegrams to both Chief Rabbis saying: "Please refrain taking further steps until the new Central Committee meeting in a fortnight's time revises the decision." It was also learned that the Central Committee might even meet this week.

The youth circles yesterday appealed to Mr. Bernstein to move quickly in view of the sharpness of the Chief Rabbis' reaction.

Two more Jews said arrested in Baghdad

TEL AVIV. — Rumours of additional arrests of Jews in Iraq have been reported here by the Public Council for Jews in Arab lands. At least two more Jews have been reported arrested, with no details available on their fate.

At the same time, some of the details concerning the 10 Jews arrested in Iraq last October have been learned. The 10 have now been identified as: Dr. Ezra Hazzam, 45, a physician; Ya'acov Abdul-Azziz, 61, an attorney; David Rejwan, 50, a bachelor, who was arrested following the Six Day War and then released; his brother Ya'acov Rejwan, 66, who had been arrested twice previously; Shaul Shemesh, father of two, who had been unemployed in recent years; Shemesh Azuri, 78, arrested when he went out to invite friends to a wedding (Iraqi security forces also broke into his office three days later and took from its safe the family's jewellery, records, and 14,000 dinars); Salim As'hayak; Salim Sedaka; Naji Chitayot; and Victor Daoud Ezra — about whom no details are known.

All of the above were arrested suddenly, and nothing more was heard from or about them since. Several of them are believed dead.

TOW TRUCKERS BEAT UP RIVAL DRIVER

Six members of the striking Shamgar towing company were arrested Friday after they allegedly beat up a driver of the rival Magor towing company and damaged his tow truck.

The Shamgar towers are striking in protest of a contract awarded to Magor by police, in a public tender, for removing vehicles disabled in road accidents. Shamgar, the towing service of the Israel Garage Association, entered bids of IL30 to IL35 per tow, while Magor won the contract with a bid of IL20.

Friday's assault of the Magor driver took place on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv road, at the Moza bridge. The six men, driving a car bearing the Shamgar sign, saw the Magor truck parked at the roadside. They stopped and allegedly dragged out the driver, Haim Hassid, attacked him and damaged his truck and its tow-way aid.

Police spokesman Nitzav-Mishne Michael Bochner said this was the third case of Shamgar drivers allegedly assaulting Magor drivers.

houses. There were also about 10 cases of roads being flooded by the rain, and scattered instances of falling branches cutting power, mostly to streetlights.

In Kfar, some 1,000 telephones were cut off yesterday, when rain water seeped into an underground cable on a building site.

Snow, sleet, rain and hail hit Upper Galilee and the Golan Heights on Friday night and continued all weekend. In other parts of the North and in the Jordan Valley it rained hard on and off, and farmers were delighted to have this easing of the winter drought.

Lightning and thunder storms accompanied the downpours. A carpet of snow up to 10 cms. high formed in Upper Galilee and added to that still on Mt. Hermon. But except on the mountain peaks the snow melted by noon yesterday.

SNOW PLOUGHS

The P.W.D. mobilized six snow ploughs, but only at Majdal Shams was it necessary to clear away the snow for traffic to move. The ski area on Mt. Hermon was closed.

In the Jordan Valley 30 mm. of rain were measured over the weekend. The Yarmuk River rose slightly, but did not overflow its banks. It will take another day or two before the effect on the level of Lake Kinneret is measurable.

Murder in Khartoum

cars were dispatched to surround the Saudi Arabian embassy.

By Egypt's Middle East News Agency said five shots had been heard ringing out of the embassy.

Towards midnight Friday, the Sudanese government said the Saudi Arabian ambassador had phoned the Khartoum authorities. He said the terrorists had shot dead the American ambassador, his deputy chief of the mission and the Belgian chargé d'affaires. The government said the three diplomats were murdered at 9 p.m., an hour after a deadline which the terrorists had extended seven hours earlier.

For some time there was uncertainty about the fate of the Belgian diplomat, Guy Eid. His brother, George, the latter's wife and his 70-year-old mother yesterday morning flew to Khartoum amid reports that Mr. Eid was still alive. Late yesterday afternoon, however, the terrorists, speaking to Sudanese security forces over a loudspeaker, said the Belgian diplomat was dead.

Sudanese state radio denounced the killings. It said the "execution" of the three diplomats came shortly after Sudan's Vice President and Interior Minister General Beldi Ahmed and Health Minister Maj. Abdul-Hashem Mohammed asked the terrorists to extend their deadline until yesterday. This would give the concerned parties time to deal with the terrorists' demands.

But the terrorists later telephoned the ministers to say that their patience was exhausted because they had failed to receive a "reasonable reply" to their demands.

Both the American and the Jordanian government sharply rejected the terrorist demands. Washington and Amman said they would not bow to terrorist blackmail.

LATEST IN SERIES

The Khartoum killings were the latest in a series of murders by the Black September group which inaugurated its emergence 25 months ago with the assassination of Jordan's Prime Minister Wasil Tel in Cairo. Last May, Black September staged an abortive hijack attempt of a Sabena aircraft at Lod airport. In September, they murdered 11 Israeli athletes participating in the Munich Olympics.

The Khartoum squad is believed to have come to the Sudan from Libya. Black September is part of the Fatah, notwithstanding the denials of Fatah Chief Yasser Arafat. Arafat on Friday again dissociated Fatah from Black September; but he sent the Sudanese authorities a cable protesting the arrests of Palestinians whom the Sudanese were now rounding up.

The Khartoum operation was believed to have been prompted by the terrorists' wish for headlines at a time they felt shunted to the sidelines by an apparent movement towards debate by the Arab governments, chiefly those of Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

The brutal character of their operation in Khartoum was probably aimed to counter-balance what they felt was their humiliating failure last December in the Black September terrorists' withdrawal from the Israeli embassy in Bangkok.

Two more Jews said arrested in Baghdad

TEL AVIV. — Rumours of additional arrests of Jews in Iraq have been reported here by the Public Council for Jews in Arab lands. At least two more Jews have been reported arrested, with no details available on their fate.

At the same time, some of the details concerning the 10 Jews arrested in Iraq last October have been learned. The 10 have now been identified as: Dr. Ezra Hazzam, 45, a physician; Ya'acov Abdul-Azziz, 61, an attorney; David Rejwan, 50, a bachelor, who was arrested following the Six Day War and then released; his brother Ya'acov Rejwan, 66, who had been arrested twice previously; Shaul Shemesh, father of two, who had been unemployed in recent years; Shemesh Azuri, 78, arrested when he went out to invite friends to a wedding (Iraqi security forces also broke into his office three days later and took from its safe the family's jewellery, records, and 14,000 dinars); Salim As'hayak; Salim Sedaka; Naji Chitayot; and Victor Daoud Ezra — about whom no details are known.

All of the above were arrested suddenly, and nothing more was heard from or about them since. Several of them are believed dead.

Hope grows for survival of Libyan plane disaster

Jerusalem Post Staff
Hope continued to grow over the weekend for two critically injured survivors of the Sinai plane disaster — the plane's Libyan co-pilot, Yunis el-Mehdi, and its French steward, Jean-Pierre Burdard.

Meanwhile, two other survivors were reported well enough to go home.

Hadassah Hospital reported last night that el-Mehdi, who was transferred there from Beersheba last week, continued the slight but steady improvement he has been making for several days. The Libyan co-pilot was still in critical condition in the hospital's intensive respiratory care unit, but doctors were said to be very optimistic about his chances for pulling through if the improvement continues for the next two to three days. Mehdi's Greek wife, who has a room at the hospital, sat by his bed during the day.

Two more survivors at Soroka Egyptian hotel employee Feisal hamed el-Sharaya and Libyan chancé Fathi Abdullah el-Kor have been ready for discharge several days and are expected to go home very shortly. Both have been moved to a special ward where they are waiting about the location of the remaining three survivors at Soroka, Jordanian, lahi el-Khalil, suffering from burns, continued in serious but critical condition, as did Libyan salesman Asad Shukri Tahouni, has chest and abdominal injury third man, still unidentified de brief moments of consciousness maintained in critical condition.

IFALPA chie for 'hot line'

TEL AVIV. — Olaf Forsberg, ident of the International Federation of Airline Pilots Association (IFALPA), is to try to persuade Egypt to agree to the establishment of a "hot-line" communication channel with Israel, he said yesterday.

Speaking in a telephone interview broadcast by Israel Radio, Forsberg said his organization would do everything possible to prevent the recurrence of a tragedy as the one in which a Libyan airliner was downed, Sinai last month after falling off orders to land.

Mr. Forsberg said, in answer to questions, that he felt the fighter planes, which had fallen on the intruding Libyan airliner, seen that it had caused no damage, should have let it escape when it saw it was trying to return Egyptian territory.

Meir, Nixon exchange warm toasts at White House dinner

Meir, Nixon exchange warm toasts at White House dinner

By SAM LIPSKI
WASHINGTON — Prime Minister Golda Meir left here for Miami on Monday after an unusually warm and friendly exchange of toasts with President Richard Nixon at a ceremonial White House dinner Thursday.

Meir, who arrived in Washington on Wednesday, was the first Israeli Prime Minister to be invited to the White House for a formal dinner. She was accompanied by her husband, Yigal Meir, and their children. The dinner was held in the State Dining Room and was attended by about 100 guests, including members of the Nixon family and other high-ranking officials.

Meir and Nixon exchanged warm toasts during the dinner. Meir said that she was proud to be the first Israeli Prime Minister to be invited to the White House. She said that she was confident that the relationship between Israel and the United States would continue to grow stronger in the years ahead.

Nixon responded by saying that he was proud to have Golda Meir as a guest at the White House. He said that he was confident that the relationship between Israel and the United States would continue to grow stronger in the years ahead.

The dinner was a significant event in the history of Israel-U.S. relations. It was the first time that an Israeli Prime Minister had been invited to the White House for a formal dinner. The event was widely covered by the media and was a major highlight of Meir's visit to the United States.

Citrus growers cool toward research on frost damage

By YACOV FRIEDLER
JERUSALEM — The country's citrus growers, who last week demanded immediate Government aid to help them recover from frost damage estimated at IL180m, have been accused of showing "little interest" in research offered by the Technion to salvage their spoiled fruit.

Prof. Haim Mannheim, head of the Technion's food Engineering and Biotechnology Department, told The Jerusalem Post that, when the cold wave started, he contacted the Citrus Marketing Board and asked them to supply samples of affected citrus and a market budget for research. "We were anxious to test the fruit, establish the degree of damage caused, assess its cash value for the processing industry, establish how much they should pay for it, and propose ways of getting the most out of it."

LITTLE INTEREST
"We found little interest in our proposal," he said. One shipment of half a ton, which is the quantity needed for testing, was received by the Department. "And we went ahead with our tests without getting formal authorization from the Board," he said. The Board had informed them that it would provide the IL20,000 to IL25,000 needed for the research, "provided the processing industry covered half the sum."

Since then, Prof. Mannheim said, the Technion had heard nothing more from them.

He noted that citrus plantations had also been affected during the previous major frost, nine years ago. Then, too, the Department started research, but met with little enthusiasm from the growers.

"The only possibility of working out ways of reducing the damage to a minimum is to study the fruit when it is damaged by frost," he noted. Since the necessary research was not carried out then, the Department could offer no advice now; and if the year's chance is again passed by the growers will be faced with the same difficulties the next time a frost strikes.

Bir'im evacuees march on former village

JERUSALEM POST STAFF
HAIFA — Several hundred Maronite villagers evacuated from the village of Bir'im in 1949 marched to their present homes in Gush Halav (Jish) to the site of their former village yesterday in protest against the Government decision not to rebuild Bir'im. Men, women and children braved the snow and rain, carrying the state flag on their march, and gathered in the Bir'im church for a protest rally. The chairman of their committee, Meir Ayub, said they would never forget their village and would not settle elsewhere.

The police had given them a permit for their demonstration, which passed quietly.

Meanwhile the Lands Administration is preparing a plan on a hill near Gush Halav for a new scheme intended to provide homes for former Bir'im families now living in overcrowded conditions. An approach road is being paved, water pipes are being laid, and 100 plots of half a dunam each are being prepared for as many projected houses. The project is being carried out by the Government, to be given to former Bir'im villagers on special terms.

But the committee of Bir'im residents is opposed to the project. Mr. Ayub said the homes would only be acceptable if they were built at Bir'im.

Kahane calls at Arab village on emigration offer

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
ACRE — The head of the militant Jewish Defence League, Rabbi Meir Kahane, visited Fassuta, in Upper Galilee, Friday to explain to the Arab population his proposal to help Arabs emigrate from Israel. But his first visit to an Arab village was marred by the fact that he arrived more than two hours late for his appointment with Emmanuel Khoury, so far the only Arab to cooperate with the J.D.L. Rabbi Kahane told the Arabs who waited for him that his idea was not motivated by any hatred of the Arabs or of their culture, but by a deep conviction that they could never feel themselves equal citizens in a Jewish state, and that they would always be strangers here. It has never been proven that two different peoples could live under one roof in peace and friendship, he claimed.

Mr. Khoury said he had received threats recently from persons demanding that he stop his work on behalf of the J.D.L. But he said he would continue to encourage Arabs to leave Israel. He said he knew of 150 families in various parts of the country who were ready to leave if they were adequately compensated.

10 arrested after Beduin clan fight

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
ACRE — Ten persons were arrested yesterday in the Beduin village of Kawakib, in Western Galilee, after a clash between two groups of the Mansour clan late Friday night. Two men were injured and taken to hospital.

One group, armed with stones and sticks, attacked the home of Ibrahim Abdel-Kader Mansour because one of his family allegedly courted a girl from the other group without the consent of her parents.

Kiryat Haim slum-dwellers end camp-in

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
HAIFA — The residents of the Kiryat Haim asbestos ma'abara folded up their tents and went home on Friday, five weeks after they started a camp-in demonstration in the public garden opposite City Hall. They were protesting against their housing conditions.

Acting Mayor Yeruhim Zeisel and the residents' committee chairman, David Amar, signed an agreement Friday morning which promises permanent homes for 80 families of six and more persons this year. The smaller families are to be rehoused within the next two years.

The Shikmona slum clearance company's chairman, Moshe Amar, a city councillor (Mapam), held up the agreement for several days by his refusal to negotiate with the squatters. He did not sign the final agreement, which was approved by the Housing Ministry and the Municipality, the two shareholders in Shikmona.

B'sheba medical school won't open till '74

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
BEERSHEBA — Israel's newly approved fourth medical school, at the University of the Negev here, will have to delay its opening until the autumn of 1974.

Medical sources here said the delay was caused by the length of time it took the Council for Higher Education to approve the school, and added that the idea was passed on Tuesday by only a one-vote majority.

Preparations for the school, which the University had hoped to open this fall, are now under way at Soroka Medical Centre (Formerly Central Negev Hospital), which is to be doubled in size. Total cost over the next three to four years is put at IL100m. There will be 30 to 40 students in the first class, the sources said.

Pincus backs Gov't-Agency division of responsibility

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
The Absorption Ministry must be a coordinating and supervisory body with a small and efficient apparatus — and should not take on any tasks which belong to other Ministries or to the Jewish Agency, Agency chairman Arye Pincus said yesterday.

But the responsibility for absorption rests with the Government, he told a Labour Party study group meeting at Beit Berl to discuss immigration and absorption.

"There is no room to talk of returning it to the hands of the Jewish Agency. It is true that the recent Zionist General Council committee on immigration suggested doing so, but whoever wants this does not know what he is talking about," he added.

Mr. Pincus was reacting at the same time to the recommendation by the Zionist Council's committee; to the suggestion by the recently resigned Director-General of the Absorption Ministry, Hillel Ashkenazi, that the Ministry take over the operation of the absorption centres; and to a suggestion made by Absorption Minister Nathan Peled that his Ministry be given control of the housing budget for immigrants.

NO PRETENSIONS
The Jewish Agency, Mr. Pincus emphasized, never pretended to deal with all the problems of absorption. The five years since the establishment of the Ministry have proven the matter is so complicated that it is ridiculous to pretend the transfer of absorption centres to it will solve all the problems. Problems such as housing, employment, health and welfare cannot be dealt with by the Absorption Ministry separately for immigrants — they must be dealt with by respective ministries in the context of the country's needs and abilities. The Housing Ministry, for example, has its considerations of overall building programmes and of population dispersion, and housing for immigrants properly belongs within that context.

Similarly, said Mr. Pincus, the immigrants' first steps in the country should be guided by the Jewish Agency, as the ones who brought him here, and it should therefore continue to run the absorption centres.

Mr. Pincus emphasized that the Jewish Agency and the Government coordinate their immigration and absorption work fully, and this makes unnecessary any joint "authority" of the Agency and the

Fined for storing military petrol

HAIFA — A former petrol station owner who stored military petrol in his garage was sentenced by the District Court here last week to five months in prison, or a IL5,000 fine.

Ze'ev Ruderman, who had been one of the proprietors of a Paz station on the Carmel shore in Haifa, was charged after an ambush by police and military police detectives caught an employee of the station transferring petrol from the military tank at the station to one of the regular tanks, in June 1971.

The accused claimed his act was not illegal — it was only afterward that the army issued regulations forbidding such transfers without a written approval. While the judge accepted this claim, he noted that a reserve of petrol was built up in the military tanks of the station by supplying military vehicles less petrol than was called for by the coupons the drivers presented. It was this reserve the accused had transferred.

Former Jewish ghetto boss fined for war crime

JERUSALEM POST REPORTER
HAIFA — The District Court here last week imposed a IL500 fine on a former Jewish manager of the Lodz Ghetto courtyard, who was found guilty of assaulting and seriously injuring three ghetto inmates during the Second World War.

The 64-year-old man, J.R. of Nablus, was brought to trial under the law against Nazis and their associates, following a complaint from a U.S. tourist, Sigmond Gorson, who was one of the victims.

Judge E. Neuman noted that it was impossible to judge the deeds committed by the accused under the conditions of the Nazi reign of terror by the norms of present-day life. He therefore considered a jail sentence out of the question.

Mr. Gorson had told the police that he had been a boy during the war and had helped his grandfather, who had a horse and cart, to deliver coal from the ghetto store. J.R. has been responsible for the store. One particularly cold day during the winter of 1943, he had "taken pity on three orphans" and stolen a few coal-dust bricks for them, hiding them in his pants. At the exit from the coal yard, the accused had beaten him, torn his pants and removed the stolen coal. When his grandfather tried to stop the accused, he had fallen on him, too, and beat him unconscious with an iron bar. The grandfather, Moshe Jacobowitz, died next day.

In 1944, all the ghetto inmates had been sent to Auschwitz. After the liberation, Gorson swore to bring the accused to trial, he told the Court. All his searches for him had been fruitless, until his third trip to Israel, in 1972, when he finally located the former ghetto boss.

Judge Neuman found the accused guilty on all counts.

Lufthansa increasing Lod flights to six per week

JERUSALEM POST AVIATION REPORTER
The West German airline, which went into its stride with two flights a week at the start of 1969, is again augmenting its regular schedule to Israel with a sixth flight weekly, beginning April 1.

The decision to expand Lufthansa's service was taken independently of the expected boom in travel to Israel this summer (as a result of the 25th anniversary celebrations). The Lufthansa spokesman pointed out that the prime reason was the 46,000 West German tourists to Israel last year, a 40 per cent increase over the 1971 figure.

Several other airlines have applied to Israel's civil aviation authorities for an increase in flights this summer, following a similar arrangement last year. Alitalia proposes to operate 18 flights weekly, an increase of two over last year's summer schedule. BEA is also asking for 18 on the London-Lod run, almost a three-fold increase over last year's five; and the other British airline, BOAC, has applied for 16 (12 last summer).

Also applying for a share in the expected summer traffic is KLM — four flights (three), Swissair, while not increasing the number of flights, is replacing a Boeing 707 with a Douglas-McDonnell DC-10 trijet, which seats 260 passengers.

After Khartoum murders Nixon expresses nation's grief

WASHINGTON. — President Nixon on Friday night expressed grief over the death of the two American diplomats killed by Black September terrorists in Khartoum and said the perpetrators of the crime must be brought to justice.

In a statement issued by the White House, Mr. Nixon called for a firm international stand against terrorism. The statement by Mr. Nixon said that "this tragic event underscores once again the need for all nations to take a firm stand against the menace of international terrorism."

Mr. Nixon has ordered the American flags at the White House, the State Department and all U.S. embassies abroad lowered to half-mast in honor of the two slain diplomats.

Israel Prime Minister Golda Meir, who is visiting the U.S., wired Mr. Nixon from Miami stating, "This all-bloody murder at the hands of savage terrorists deserves the unreserved condemnation of people everywhere."

(Foreign Minister Abba Eban in Jerusalem yesterday expressed deep sorrow at the murder of the diplomat in a cable to U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers. He also sent a cable to the Belgian Foreign Minister.)

Reactions of shock came from capitals throughout the world. France condemns the "blind and inhuman violence" of events in Khartoum, official sources in Paris said.

Italian President Giovanni Leone sent a message of condolences yesterday to Mr. Nixon expressing the shock and indignation felt by the Italian people over the slayings. West German President Gustav Heinemann also sent a telegram of condolences to Mr. Nixon.

A statement issued by the Foreign Ministry in Bonn said the killings could only lead to greater tension in the Middle East and would not solve any problems in the region. There was no immediate official reaction from Egypt and other Arab countries, but political observers in Cairo said it was feared there would be violent anti-Arab reaction throughout the world.

They said the killings would adversely affect the Arab cause, which had gained sympathy following the shooting down by Israel of a Libyan airliner over Sial.

Cosgrave is Premier in Ireland

DUBLIN. — A veteran politician with a strong dislike for Ireland's guerrilla gunmen emerged to power on Friday night as new Prime Minister of the Irish Republic.

When the final vote in Wednesday's general election was counted late on Friday afternoon the 52-year-old Liam Cosgrave had secured comfortable control of Parliament for the coalition he heads.

Mr. Cosgrave, a one-time farmer and lawyer and former Foreign Minister who has been in politics for 25 years, replaces former Prime Minister Jack Lynch, 55, whose Fianna Fail party found itself out of power for the first time since 1957.

Final standings in the 144-member Dail (Lower House of Parliament) were: Fianna Fail 69, Mr. Cosgrave's Fine Gael Party 54, Labour Party 19, Independents two.

This gave the Fine Gael-Labour coalition a two-seat overall majority with which to push through its programme of lower taxes and improved welfare.

The conflict in Northern Ireland was shut out as a campaign issue. Mr. Cosgrave, who has long opposed republican guerrilla violence, was expected to adopt Mr. Lynch's moderate approach to the problems of divided Ireland.

Ireland is used to governments with only a slender hold on power, its proportional representation system making large majorities difficult. Even so, many commentators question whether the coalition can long survive in face of critical issues lying in the near future.

Mr. Lynch blamed the loss of key seats on "bad luck" — a matter of a few votes here and there. "But it was clear his party had suffered from the absence of front-bench talent to support his own personal appeal as a former sporting hero."

Formalities keep six Arabs from leaving Austria

VIENNA (Reuter). — Six Arabs, given suspended four-month sentences and ordered to be deported from Austrian territory, are still awaiting formalities to be settled before they leave for Syria, an Interior Ministry spokesman said here yesterday.

The six men have appeared in court on charges of entering Austria on forged Israeli passports during the past six weeks. Three have claimed to be Black September members.

"We are doing everything to settle formalities, but it can be some time before the necessary papers arrive," police said.

The spokesman said, however, Austria did not fear any threats by Arab terrorists. "Austria has made it quite clear even in the official court verdict that it wants to get rid of the men as quickly as possible," he said. "They've been given the choice of going wherever they want, and that's really the best we can do for them."

Thirty million Frenchmen to vote today

PARIS (AP). — Thirty million French citizens head for the polls today to decide whether France stays on course or veers sharply to the left in the next five years.

The election is the most significant one since Charles de Gaulle came to power at the height of the Algerian war in 1958. His successors, led by President Georges Pompidou, have been telling voters that only continued Gaullist rule can ensure national prosperity, security and individual well-being.

The opposition Communists and Socialists, who teamed up last June and have been leading in public opinion polls since, declare that only their programme can bring social justice and more money for the working man.

The voting today is the first of two steps that will bring a 490-man National Assembly, or Lower House, on March 12. A runoff ballot on March 11 will involve candidates who were unable to get at least half the votes in today's round. Only a simple majority is needed in the second stage.

Egypt ends big war games

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

The Egyptian army yesterday completed big-scale war manoeuvres in which air, land and naval forces took part, Cairo Radio reported.

Yesterday's last stage of Egypt's largest even war games was inspected by War Minister General Ahmed Ismail Aly, who is also Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces.

General Ismail Aly returned to Egypt on Friday after a five-day visit to Moscow where he conferred with Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev and other Russian officials including Defence Minister Marshal Andrei Grechko.

On his way home, the Egyptian military chief stopped over at Damascus where he met with Syrian President Hafez Assad and Defence Minister General Mustafa Tlass.

Brandt will visit Egypt

CAIRO (Reuter). — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt has accepted an invitation from President Anwar Sadat to visit Egypt, the newspaper "Al-Ahram" said yesterday.

In a dispatch from its Bonn correspondent, the newspaper said President Sadat's invitation was conveyed to Mr. Brandt by Hafez Ismail, the Egyptian president's adviser for national security affairs who conferred with him in Bonn on Friday.

No romance, Anne claims

WARFIELD, England (AP). — Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth, said on Friday the reported romance between her and dashing young cavalry officer Lt. Mark Phillips was just a fairy tale. She told newsmen hounding her while she and Phillips trained their horses near here: "There is no romance and there are no grounds for these rumours of a romance between us."

A spokesman at Buckingham Palace said later: "If Princess Anne has said this perhaps everyone will now believe."

Phillips has repeatedly denied a romance with the unconventional princess since they became constant companions at dances, parties and fox-hunting rides last fall. But even so, the country has buzzed with excited speculation that the 22-year-old princess would wed the tall, dark and handsome cavalryman.

Barbie, ex-Gestapo man, held in Bolivia

LA PAZ (Reuter). — Naturalized Bolivian businessman Klaus Altmann was arrested in a street of the Bolivian capital on Friday after admitting he was Klaus Barbie, the former Gestapo chief wanted in France for war crimes.

A judge said he ordered the detention of Altmann because of a rumour he might flee the country to escape a request for his extradition made by the French government early last year, and on Friday night he was in Bolivia's main prison here.

Altmann's wife said her husband was arrested in the street by National Guardsmen. His lawyer said he had demanded his client's immediate release. His wife and his lawyer visited him in a prison cell.

France asked Bolivia for Altmann's extradition after a Paris newspaper report set off investigations into Altmann's identity by independent "Nazi-hunters."

Mrs. Beate Klarsfeld, the young German housewife married to a French Jew, who reportedly tracked Barbie to his hide-out in La Paz, went to Bolivia a year ago to demand the extradition to France.

Barbie was convicted in his absence after the war by a French military tribunal for war crimes, including the torture and murder of hundreds of French resistance workers in the French city of Lyons. Altmann settled in Bolivia in 1952 and took Bolivian nationality five years later.

A Bolivian Foreign Ministry source said last August that although there is no extradition treaty between France and Bolivia, it might be possible to hand Altmann over on the basis of "human morality and international law."

Vietnam guarantee agreement signed

PARIS (Reuter). — Signature of the final declaration of the Vietnam conference led diplomats saying yesterday, "So far, so good," but under no illusions that the 1,000-word document alone would stop the sporadic fighting in Indochina.

Diplomatic sources said signature of the five-day conference's final act has shown the firm resolution of all parties that there must be a stop to foreign interference in the internal affairs of North and South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

The prime objective of the international conference which successfully concluded here on Friday was to get formal and solemn approval and support of the Soviet Union, China, Britain, France and other countries to the January 27 Paris peace agreement.

The conference completely succeeded in getting this wide backing for the accord, which was signed by the U.S., North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Vietcong.

Diplomats here, however, said that nothing in Friday's nine-article final act signed by 12 foreign ministers would alter the fact that responsibility for implementing the Vietnam settlement would continue to rest with the four parties to that accord.

Diplomats did not think that the document was perfect, but it was clear to them from the work of the conference's drafting committee that it presented the highest level of agreement they could have achieved.

In Saigon, the Vietcong delegation officially notified the U.S. Gov-

Egypt asks U.N. to act against Israel

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter). — Egypt's U.N. representative yesterday handed a note to the president of the Security Council saying Israel's "unprovoked and cruel massacre" of 106 passengers and crew aboard the Libyan airliner "should not be allowed to pass with impunity."

The letter, presented by Ismail Abdel-Meguid to Ambassador Aguilino Boyd of Panama, did not, however, request a council meeting.

25 killed in Moscow crash

MOSCOW (UPI). — A Bulgarian airliner crashed near Moscow's Remontyev airport yesterday, killing 25 people, Tass news agency

Tass gave no figures but we airline sources said they had reported that the plane, a Soviet-built Ilyushin-18 turboprop, carried 17 passengers and eight crew.

This was confirmed later by Bulgarian airline.

It was the third crash at the port in the last five months. Tass reported the crash in paragraphs and said the Ministry of Civil Aviation had formed a mission to investigate the crash. The report did not give the names of the persons aboard.

Western airline sources said plane came down near the Moscow-Leningrad road about 10 km. from the runway of Sheremetyevo airport.

Grivas' raider take revenge, blow up station

NICOSIA (Reuter). — Twenty armed men armed with dynamite, grenades and sub-machineguns, on a Greek-Cypriot village, night and blew up the police station.

The raiders, believed supporters of General George Grivas, for guerrilla leader who fought for Cypriot independence from Britain, described their attack as revenge for a beating up of two their supporters, an official statement said.

The 20 men split into two groups for the night raid on Pissouri, a village in southwest Cyprus, which has a population of 1,000. Ten carrying automatic weapons, downed the police station door.

Police Sergeant Leonidas Thilou drew his pistol when he broke in and took cover in a basement, but surrendered when raiders threatened to throw a grenade down the stairs.

7 draws in weekend soccer

By PAUL KOEN
Jerusalem Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Ramat Gan Hakoah yesterday trounced bottom of the league Marmorek Hapoel 3-0 to extend its lead at the top of the table to three points. Second placed Tel Aviv Hapoel were held to a 1-1 draw at home by Petah Tikva Maccabi.

Marmorek's heavy defeat in Ramat Gan opened a three point gap at the foot of the table as well as 15th placed Shimonon held Haifa Maccabi to a 0-0 draw by Haifa. The two clubs above them, still involved in the struggle to avoid relegation, both scored useful wins. Petah Tikva Hapoel beat Jerusalem Betar 1-0 and Netanya Maccabi won by the same score against Beersheba Hapoel.

The two draw experts in the National League, Tel Aviv Maccabi and Kfar Saba Hapoel, both did it again. Tel Aviv Maccabi were held to a goalless draw by Haifa Hapoel and Kfar Saba Hapoel were stale-mated with Tel Aviv Betar 1-1. With four National League games ending in draws yesterday, no important changes showed in the National League standings.

The game between Jerusalem Hapoel and Jaffa Maccabi was postponed because Hapoel's Katamon pitch was not fit for play because of rain. Two league "A" games were also postponed because of the weather and poor playing conditions.

At Gaiot Gil Hakoah's important win, was scored thanks to an all out attacking game. Marmorek Hapoel were weakened by the absence, due to injury, of their goalkeeper Ronnie Moskowitz, who was replaced by Ya'acov Kreut. Asher Messing gave Hakoah the lead in the 33rd minute with a 16 metre shot. Yehuda Sharabani added two more goals in the 69th and 82nd minutes. A small crowd of about 1,000 supporters turned out for the game.

Petah Tikva Hapoel scored its win against Jerusalem Betar thanks to a goal two minutes before the end of the match. The scorer was Haim Bachar, who collected a headed pass from Shaul Hayak. Otherwise the game was unexciting as neither set of forwards seemed capable of beating the opposing defence. Referee Samuel Finkelstein came in for protests in the 66th minute when he ignored appeals for a penalty kick by the Jerusalem players, after Eli Hajaj was brought down from behind by Meir Blumenthal.

Seven thousand hardy fans braved the rain at the Bloomfield Stadium to see a good game between Tel Aviv Hapoel and Petah Tikva Maccabi. The visitors took the lead in the 33rd minute through Danny Spokolnik, who deflected a free kick by Zeev Seitzer. Tel Aviv Hapoel pressed for the equalizer but were held off mainly by the fine display of goalkeeper Shimon Keel. Also Zeev Seitzer played an outstanding game as sweeper in the Petah Tikva Maccabi defence. Tel Aviv Hapoel's equalizer came in the 83rd minute through Yehoshua Feigenbaum, after a neat move with Moshe Mordechowitz.

The second game at the same stadium, between Tel Aviv Maccabi and Haifa Hapoel, was extremely poor in comparison. Missing in the Haifa referee Yosef Bechar (wearing hat), who came to Jerusalem to judge yesterday's cancelled Jerusalem Hapoel-Jaffa Maccabi soccer game, is helped through the rain soaked field by a Hapoel usher. (Rahamim Yarseli)

Haifa team was Yitzhak Engender. The defences of both teams were clearly on top, and the forwards rarely looked as if they would put in goals.

Veteran Victor Saroussi again saved Netanya Maccabi, in a game against Beersheba Hapoel, scoring the only goal of the game in the 48th minute. Avraham Sabo, who returned to the team after an extended absence, shot from 16 meters. The Beersheba goalkeeper Ya'acov Deban failed to hold the ball enabling Saroussi to nip in with the crucial point. Earlier Meir Barad missed a fine scoring chance for the visitors. The game was played in rain, in the presence of 3,000 fans.

FIRST HALF
Both goals at Kfar Saba were scored in the first half. In the 30th minute Reuven Nimni picked up an accurate pass from Shimon Cohen to give Tel Aviv Betar the lead. Ten minutes later defender Meir Cohen levelled for Kfar Saba Hapoel beating Betar's keeper Yehuda Fiolosoff with a free kick from 20 meters.

Although their regular goalkeeper Michael Sheinfeld did not play because of injury, Shimonon held Haifa Maccabi to a 0-0 draw. Reserve goalkeeper Yosef Ben Ami "A" by beating Ramat Amidar Maccabi forwards Ports and Agami missed several golden scoring chances.

Ben Yehuda returned to the top of the Southern Division of League "A" by beating Ramat Amidar Maccabi 1-0 and because Holon Hapoel's game at Rishon Lezion was called off, Northern Division leaders Hadera Hapoel were held to a 1-1 draw in Herzliya.

Liverpool beat Everton in English soccer

LONDON (Reuter). — The race for the English First Division soccer championship remained wide open as the three main contenders, Liverpool, Arsenal and Leeds United all won their matches yesterday.

England international Emlyn Hughes scored twice in the last nine minutes as Liverpool beat Everton 2-0 in their local derby, keeping ahead of Arsenal on goal average. Everton have now gone six matches without scoring. Arsenal and Leeds registered 3-2 victories over Sheffield United and Derby County after twice being behind.

Alan Woodward gave Sheffield a 16th minute lead against Arsenal before Charlie George equalized one minute before halftime. Recent signing Jim Bone restored United's advantage in the 62nd minute before George made the scores level again in the 79th minute and England World Cup star Alan Ball snatched the winner seven minutes later.

Penalties by Scottish international Peter Lorimer twice pulled Leeds back after league champions Derby had led through Alan Durban and Kevin Hector. England striker Allan Clarke then delivered Leeds' knock-out blow 11 minutes from time. The Derby-Leeds match was a rehearsal of their cup quarter-final clash in two weeks time. Leeds remain four points behind Arsenal, but have three matches in hand over the Londoners and two on Liverpool.

Derek Dougan, Wolverhampton Wanderers' veteran Irish international, grabbed the individual honors with a hat-trick as his team slammed Manchester City 5-1. John Richards pressed his England claims by netting the other two goals to join West Ham's Bryan Robson at the top of the First Division scoring list.

Manchester United beat West Bromwich Albion 2-1 in the relegation battle between the two bottom clubs. Former England international Jeff Castle scored his first goal of the season to put West Brom one

Driver hurt in crash at S. African Grand Prix

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter). — Clay Regazzoni of Switzerland was flown to hospital in serious condition yesterday after a three-car crash shortly after the start of the South African Grand Prix.

Mike Hallwood of Britain and Jackie Ickx of Belgium were also hurt in the accident but both suffered only slight injuries. Dave Charlton, the South African driver, told officials during a pit stop that he remembered going into a corner too fast and being clipped by another car which he could not identify as he struggled to gain control.

The turmoil which followed sent three cars ploughing off the track. The race was won by Jackie Stewart of Scotland driving a Tyrrell Ford. Second was Peter Revson of the United States driving a McLaren Ford and third was reigning world champion Emerson Fittipaldi in a John Player special.

THREE GOALS

Third-placed Aston Villa led 2-0 against Fulham, but then conceded three goals in 12 minutes to lose 3-2. Fulham moved into third place ahead of Aston Villa on goal average and seven points behind Queens Park Rangers. Cardiff City improved their chances of staying in the Second Division by beating Orient 3-1, while fellow-strugglers Bournemouth were held to a 1-1 draw by Nottingham Forest.

Bolton Wanderers took over the Third Division leadership by beating Walsall 3-1. They are one point ahead of Bournemouth, who drew 0-0 with Tranmere Rovers Friday.

There was no change at the top of the Scottish First Division with Glasgow Rangers beating St. Johnstone 2-1 to stay one point ahead of Glasgow Celtic. Celtic, bidding for their eighth successive league title, scored a 2-0 victory over Aberdeen in a rehearsal of their cup quarter-final.

Technion crush Tel Aviv U. Rugby XV

JERUSALEM POST Sports Reporter

HAIFA. — The Technion Rugby XV yesterday achieved a hard-earned 10-0 victory over Tel Aviv University at the Neve Shaanan Stadium here, after leading 6-0 at halftime.

On a pitch turned into a quagmire by torrential rain, the Haifaites owed their success to domination of the scrum both in the tight and the loose. Particularly fine performances came from Greenstein, Lewis, Lurie and Shapiro, the game's first scorer. Lewis put over the conversion. Winger Ashley added the second try, after a fine movement by the Haifa three-quarters.

Tel Aviv, though outplayed, stuck to their guns and played hard in a match of surprisingly high standard, considering the ground conditions. Their best performers were halves Herr and Chased, and Gold in his familiar 8th man position.

Yesterday afternoon's scheduled Hebrew University — Ramat Gan "B" fixture was postponed, however, because of a waterlogged field at the Givat Ram Grosberg Stadium. The match in the capital would have marked the National League debut of Ramat Gan's Junior XV, which has been preparing for it with a series of friendly games over the past four months.

The Ramat Gan club elected Maurice Epstein as chairman at its annual general meeting on Thursday night.

Pakistan gain in test match against U.K.

LAHORE (Reuter). — England, in a position of strength after the first day, slowly lost their hold on the first test against Pakistan here yesterday and at the close last night it was Pakistan who were the better placed.

In a dreary two-hour morning session, England carried their total from 272 for four to 330 for five. They then collapsed in the afternoon, losing their last five wickets for 22 to be all out for 355.

Spurs win U.K. soccer cup final

WEMBLEY (AP). — Ralph Coates came on as a substitute and scored the only goal as Tottenham beat Norwich 1-0 in the English Soccer League Cup final yesterday. Coates' dramatic goal, scored after he expected to spend the game as a spectator on the substitutes' bench, snatched a draw match which was punctuated with injuries and free kicks.

The goal came in the 72nd minute, when Coates picked up a rebound from a defender and made no mistake with a low right foot drive from 15 yards. An England international winger who was dropped from the Spurs first team earlier this season, he came on as a substitute in the 24th minute when midfield star John Pratt sustained a groin injury.

It was a dream comeback for Coates who had earlier complained that he had been made a scapegoat for several recent moderate performances by Tottenham.

This was the second time in three years that the London club had won the prestigious trophy which carries automatic entry into the European U.E.F.A. Cup Tournament. Tottenham offered each member of the squad a special victory bonus of a thousand pounds, but the added incentive did little to increase the quality of the game for a 100,000 capacity crowd at London's Wembley Stadium.

Faced with a grimly determined defence, Tottenham showed little imagination and never got down to really flowing soccer. Norwich, playing in their first ever major tournament final, showed determination in tackling, but rarely looked like breaking through for a goal.

Rains halt cricket — tennis

By JACK LEON

Jerusalem Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The Israel Cricket Association's scheduled first practice of the 1973 season at Ashdod was washed out yesterday after incessant overnight rain left pools of water on the pitch and outfield.

The practice was to be the first of fortnightly trial practices throughout the country to choose the local side for the cricket competition of the Maccabi in July, when participants will include Israel, Australia, Britain, and South Africa. The final team to represent Israel will be announced on June 10, one month before the start of the games. Also rained off yesterday were the opening matches of the second half of the National Tennis League's 1972/73 season. Tel Aviv Maccabi at present have a two-point lead at the top of the table over Tel Aviv Hapoel and defending champions Carmel Haifa.

SP your daughter learn a trade

By Lea Levavi
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — A GIRL who studies printing at a vocational high school will earn more money than a teacher or clerk with several years' experience. But parents are reluctant to send girls to study trades which require them to get their hands dirty.

Nathan Almoshino — a member of the Histadrut Central Committee and chairman of the Histadrut's Amal vocational school network — says Israel is conservative where vocational education for girls is concerned. "We're world-famous as a country where women opened new occupations for themselves. But the girls who come to our vocational high schools and to those sponsored by other organizations, generally study fashion, clerical occupations and other 'feminine' trades."

In the entire country, only about 150 girls are studying electronics, while in Switzerland and Germany electronics is a fairly commonplace occupation for women. "We have a few girls in our printing department here in Tel Aviv but I think there should be many more in these trades."

More boys, too, should be attracted to vocational high schools, Mr. Almoshino believes. A student who graduates from an academic high school has no trade — and even if he goes to the university, he may not find a job afterward. If he studied certain of the humanities and social sciences. Also, vocational high schools now offer courses which make intellectual demands similar to those of academic high schools: courses for technicians (one year past matriculation) and courses for practical engineers (two years past matriculation).

Getting it out of your system, with Pygmalion

By Hadassah Bat Haim

HAIFA. — AMID all the encounter groups, joint therapy sessions, and other collective attempts to relieve tension of modern living, one form of assembly has held its own, sometimes in decline, but never quite disappearing — the drama circle. Overlaid and subbed by up-to-date psychological jargon, despised by newer generations, play readings and amateur performances have retained their stalwart adherents and are making a comeback.

Now, to and behold, the mind healers have rediscovered the drama. Tense and nervous people are urged to "get outside themselves," and how better than by pretending to be somebody else. To yell at a make-believe enemy on the boards rather than one's matrimonial partner, or even at the innocent dog.

Children know this instinctively and the "Bang, bang, You're dead," deplored by so many conscientious peace-loving parents may not be recognized by them as a protest against the maddening frustrations of childhood, but the kids know. In this case — as in others — the child leads its elders, but this juvenile wisdom is often left behind as sophistication beckons.

For immigrants, participation in play readings and plays is a particularly effective way of learning Hebrew, if you can find a director willing to put up with stumbling speech and atrocious accent. Teachers of language all know about it and teachers of English especially have encouraged their

I told Mr. Almoshino of two vocational high school seniors, both studying electronics, who said they now want to go to university and study psychology. Once you attract a student to vocational high school, I asked, how do you keep him in the trade he has learned — in a culture where a university education means status, even if you cannot get a job?

"I think this is what differentiates our network from all the others," Mr. Almoshino replied. "Because the history of the labour movement and the Histadrut is a compulsory subject in Amal they learn to consider work a value in itself. They are proud of being skilled workers."

APPROXIMATELY 11,000 students are studying in Amal schools this year, about 60 per cent of whom are from Asian and African backgrounds. More than three-quarters of them are in full-time vocational high school courses — three or four years, depending on the trade, with additional post-matriculation study for higher-level technicians. The rest of the students are in apprenticeship programmes where they work five days a week and spend the sixth day at school. Mr. Almoshino thinks the development of vocational education is held back because of budgetary problems. Vocational high school fees are the same as in academic high schools, though the per-pupil cost at a vocational high school is about 75 per cent higher. "We think the difference should be made up by the Ministry of Education — not by the parents. If the parents were asked to pay, no students would come to vocational high schools."

Bringing up children — and their parents

By Miriam Arad

TWO originally American books, the first advising parents on how to handle teenagers, the second — teenagers on how to handle themselves, their parents, their love and sex-life, drugs, and things in general, have appeared recently in Hebrew. The first — Between Parent and Teenager by Dr. Haim Ginott (Hebrew by the author and Ora Cohen) and the second, A Teenager's Guide to Life and Love — so non-Hebrew-reading parents beware: your teenagers are sure to read the one that's not meant for them, and quote or misquote it at you.

Professor Ginott's book aims at peaceful coexistence rather than at any millennium. It's sober look at what teenagers are about is illustrated by the story of the boy going to a clothes-store to buy a suit and enquiring of the attendant: "Can I change it in case my parents like it?"

Taking this attitude as one's starting-point, what can a parent do? Precious little about suits and other rebellious manifestations, but he can adopt a few rules of thumb, as follows: Define his problems for him, rather than offer advice (which he probably won't take); whatever you do, don't call names, don't sneer, don't insult, don't attack his personality — or praise it (creating expectations) — but rather praise and blame his acts: I like (dislike) your painting, and not: You're a great (lousy) painter.

This is the general idea of the book, but you have to read it — and try it out — to benefit by it. Whether you will or not, it is an easily digestible book, its advice spoon-fed in little bits with plenty of "real-life" examples to make it vivid and get its message across. I think it is sensible, practical, and well worth reading.

ON the principle that from 12 on children can be left free to read, and trusted to digest, about anything (perhaps barring outright pornography) you might have Dr. Spock's "Guide" around, possibly with a casual "I wouldn't accept everything he says" word to the wise teenager beforehand.

As in his famed "Baby and Child Care," Dr. Spock is fine with practical advice, but rather off-putting when he goes on to matters emotional, psychological or social, or when he goes too cheerful and all's-well-ish.

Dr. Spock is good about the physiological side of sexual development, helpful about such things as how to start a conversation with one of the opposite sex or how to get Daddy to let you have the car, less so about the difference between "romantic" and physical passion, and still less when agitating for motherhood as a career.

I'm all for bringing up your own children, but it's no use mincing matters as Dr. Spock does. He expresses amazement at the fact that so many women with a higher education find child-rearing dull and frustrating, and tells his unassuming girl readers what a manly business it is. Look at all those male paediatricians, child-psychologists, psychiatrists! Quite, but doesn't he know very well it isn't the child-rearing but the cooking and cleaning that comes with it?

Translation and proofreading are both abominable in the Spock book, fine in the Ginott.

Many Chinese doctors laugh at acupuncture

By Frank Carey

WASHINGTON (AP). — An American doctor who recently returned from Asia reports that acupuncture is "not only not widely accepted but is laughed at" by many modern Chinese doctors.

Dr. C.M. Plotz, of the State University of New York at Brooklyn, and a leading consultant of the American Rheumatism Association and the Arthritis Foundation, said so in an address last week to a conference on the status of American clinical research on, and evaluation of, the ancient Chinese needle technique. It is being held in Bethesda, Maryland.

The conference, sponsored by the U.S. National Institutes of Health, is an outgrowth of its decision made last July following President Nixon's visit to China, to "expand its search for knowledge on acupuncture anaesthesia and analgesia (pain relief) in the U.S."

Most of the first reports at the conference described beneficial effects in most patients in relieving chronic pain in conditions ranging from migraine headaches and stiff necks to osteoarthritis and peptic ulcer.

Dr. Plotz, who described himself as "a healthy sceptic" concerning acupuncture, said he had received an appraisal of it by Chinese doctors during an 18-month stay in Indonesia and in mainland China and Hongkong.

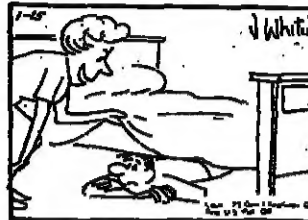

He reported on this Chinese view in urging that a joint objective study be undertaken by American private and Government researchers to determine whether acupuncture could be of value to America's 18 million sufferers from rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis. He implied that such an appraisal would go far toward determining whether acupuncture is truly capable of relieving pain in other conditions and as a surgical anaesthetic.

Declaring that, up to now, American evaluations of the ancient method have been based only on "testimonial evidence" and on "newspaper reports which are not very scientific," he said: "It is time that, with all the (favourable) publicity acupuncture has had, that we confine ourselves to looking upon it as a 'drug X' that is being introduced and that we subject it to the same rigorous scientific analysis that is made on any new drug."

Dr. Plotz said that when he was in Hongkong he found that "while the modern Chinese doctors were sceptical and scoffing (at acupuncture), they had a kind of holdback in which they would say that acupuncture 'would be good for my old mother and maybe if I were back up against the wall I'd try it on myself'."

In the early reports at the conference, including two by doctors of Chinese extraction, a few patients were described as having received "tremendous" and even unbelievable relief from chronic pain. But in most cases, the relief was described as only transitory, and as necessitating return by the patients for further treatments.

INDIA STREAMLINES DIAMOND SUPPLY

By TREVOR DRIESBACH
Jerusalem Post Correspondent

DELHI — The Indian Government is expected to decide on setting up a new diamond supply of uncut diamonds to polishers in India, working for the export market. This may take the form of an Indian-owned company to be set up in Bombay in collaboration with Diamond Sales Ltd. an association of diamond trading companies, London. The proposal for a company is in the final stages of consideration here, according to the Financial Express of Bombay.

Export of cut and polished diamonds is a steadily growing Indian industry, but less than 5 per cent of the industry's requirements of roughs are from domestic sources. Processors are dissatisfied with the present system of supply and have been pressing the government for a more satisfactory one. The processors think it is necessary to collaborate with the London company and its associates to ensure supplies in the desired quantity and at international prices.

In 1971-72 exports of cut and polished diamonds were worth $50m., a considerable rise from the state of the business five years ago. In 1964, diamond export revenues amounted to a mere $3.24m. This year's exports are expected to reach $53m.

Keren Hayesod goal outside U.S. is $150m.

TEL AVIV — World Jewry outside the U.S. (comprising some 2,600,000 persons in 69 countries) has been asked to raise over $150m. for the United Israel Appeal this year. This will comprise approximately one-third of the contemplated Jewish Agency budget for the fiscal year 1973/74.

This was announced Friday by Mr. Shapira, world chairman of the Keren Hayesod, which is responsible for United Israel Appeal activities in those countries. Mr. Shapira was speaking before the Commercial and Industrial Club at the Z.O.A. House here.

Mr. Shapira said last year's Keren Hayesod — United Israel Appeal campaign outside the U.S. raised $100m. This year's goal will thus constitute an average increase of 50 per cent, a figure which he felt was attainable in view of the substantial increases registered so far in most of the campaigns.

Zim won't take fuel surcharge

Jerusalem Post Reporter

HAIFA — The Zim management yesterday informed the Shippers' Council that it had decided not to collect the 5 per cent fuel surcharge imposed by the Container-Israel Shipping Conference (CONISCON), effective from last Thursday.

The decision was taken in answer to the Council's demand to cancel the surcharge, as contradicting a specific agreement that no freight increases would be made without prior consultation with the Council. The Conference itself is selecting the surcharge, and Zim's decision may result in an internal fight. (Zim is a leading member of the Conference.)

Medreco puts off closing Sidon plant

BEIRUT (UPI) — The Mediterranean Refinery Company (Medreco) yesterday agreed to postpone for 90 days its threat to close down its refinery in Lebanon. The ultimatum would have run out last week.

Medreco agreed to the extension after holding talks with Lebanese ministers and U.S. Embassy experts, oil sources said. It had threatened to close down its refinery at Sidon, in southern Lebanon, if the Government did not agree to higher prices for its products. The refinery provides about 40 per cent of Lebanon's petroleum products consumption.

The Medreco pipeline is jointly owned by the American Caltex and Mobil Oil companies. It processes oil pumped to the Mediterranean port of Sidon from Saudi Arabia.

Cecil-Knit staff get 'effort' bonus in plant's sale

TEL AVIV — The salaried employees of the Cecil Knit company will receive a total of IL100,000 as a bonus for special efforts they made to increase the plant's productivity while it was in receivership.

An agreement to this effect was reached last week with the plant's new owners, the American Kayser-Roth Company, the banks to which Cecil Knit owed money, and the official receiver. The agreement followed a suit by the workers committee and the Ashkelon Labour Council for IL180,000.

District Court Judge Shlomo Lowenberg replied he was not authorized by law to give preference to any creditors over others — but in view of the workers' special efforts on behalf of the plant, he agreed to call together the Official Receiver, the banks and the new owners.

The Kayser-Roth firm purchased Cecil Knit from the official receiver last month. The Ashkelon Labour Council facilitated the takeover by agreeing to reduce the number of employees from 480 to 350, and to put them all on a six-month trial period.

No bribe without consideration

The Supreme Court allowed an appeal against a judgment of the Nazareth District Court delivered on July 18, 1972 (Cr. C. 23/72).

The appellant was charged in the Nazareth District Court with passing on two sums of money totaling IL150 each to one, Pinhas Blander, in order that he should exert his influence on the licensing of a service or some other benefit to his driving tests, contrary to sections 6(b) and (c) of the Penal Law Amendment (Bribery) Law, 1952, as amended in 1962. He was acquitted of an offence contrary to section 6(b) and found guilty of an offence contrary to section 6(c).

Section 6 of the Bribery Law provides that: "(b) A person who receives money, money's worth, a service or some other benefit, or a promise, himself or through another, to induce a public servant... to accord preferential treatment or to practise discrimination, shall be treated as if he were a person who receives a bribe. (c) A person who gives money, money's worth, a service or some other benefit to a person who receives... specified in subsection (a) or (b), shall be treated as if he were a person who gives a bribe."

The appellant appealed against his conviction to the Supreme Court. Mr. Licht appeared for the appellant and Miss Z. Lewinsky, Assistant State Attorney, for the State.

Judgment

Justice Sussman, who delivered the judgment of the Supreme Court, first discussed the District Court's acquittal of the appellant on the charge of committing an offence contrary to section 6(b). Section 6, he noted, was amended in 1962, so as to make two sub-sections — sections 6(a) and 6(b) of the original section 6 (a). As a result, he noted further, of the Supreme Court ruling in the Beila case (Cr.A. 161/58, P.D. 13/1708) to the effect that a go-between who receives money from a public servant and does not himself benefit from the transaction is not guilty of an offence against section 6(a), the new section 6(a) contains an express provision to the effect that "it shall be immaterial whether a go-between has been given to him (that is, to a person who receives money, etc. in order that he may give a bribe to a public servant) to another, for his acting as a go-between, or whether or not he actually intended to give a bribe." However, continued Justice Sussman, section 6(b) which replaces the second part of the original section 6(a), and deals with receiving money, etc. in order to induce a public servant to accord preferential treatment or to practise discrimination, does not contain a parallel provision. It would appear, therefore, that the legislator had deliberately intended leaving the Supreme Court's decision with regard to a "go-between without profit" in force in so far as the offence contrary to section 6(b) is concerned. He wished to emphasize, however, continued Justice Sussman, that he had reached this decision without relying on, or referring to, section 6(d) of the amended law (which provides that "receipt includes receipt on behalf of another person or through another person, as this section had not been brought to the attention of the District Court and had not been referred to by the State in the appeal).

Without taking section 6(d) into consideration, therefore, he held, the District Court had been correct in holding that as the evidence showed that the appellant had received no benefit from the transaction in which he had passed on two sums of money from two of his acquaintances to Pinhas Blander, he had not been guilty of an offence contrary to section 6(b).

Justice Sussman then went on to consider the appellant's appeal against his conviction under section 6(c). The appellant had argued, he said, that he could not possibly have been convicted of an offence against this section before the court had found that Blander had accepted the two sums of IL150 given him by the appellant with the intention of "inducing a public servant to accord preferential treatment or to practise discrimination."

within the meaning of section 6(b). He found this argument acceptable, he held, as section 6(c) states expressly that a person who gives money, etc. commits an offence only if he gives the money to "a person who receives as specified in subsection (a) or (b)," which means, in the present case, to a person who receives the money in order to induce a public servant to accord preferential treatment or to practise discrimination, or, in other words, who receives the money in order to wield his influence and not in order to give it to the public servant (as when money is given to a public servant that constitutes an offence against section 3 of the Bribery Law and not against section 6(c)).

The District Court, therefore, held Justice Sussman, had not been entitled to convict the appellant under section 6(c) without first establishing that Blander had received the money in order to influence a public servant to accord preferential treatment to the appellant's friends. For Blander had had no such intention, then it was immaterial that the appellant might have had that intention, as his intention alone was not sufficient to convict him. As to proof of Blander's criminal intentions, this could have been gathered, he continued, from the circumstances revealed in the evidence and did not necessarily have to be based on Blander's testimony. But from the evidence produced in the case, it appeared that the appellant's two friends had passed their driving tests without any intervention whatsoever on the part of Blander.

This gave rise to the suspicion that Blander might have deceived the appellant, a suspicion which was fortified by the fact that Blander had collected the money after the event, that is after the two had successfully passed their tests. However, concluded Justice Sussman, there was no cause for reaching any definite decision as to whether there had been sufficient evidence before the District Court to conclude that Blander had intended influencing the testers, or not, since it was sufficient that the District Court had refrained from coming to any positive conclusion on this issue to warrant acquitting the appellant. The appeal should therefore, be allowed.

Judgment given on January 28, 1973.
